

4.1.

4.1. Micro-services community building

We want to release the software we've developed for the Merritt repository as free and open source, and begin to engage a community of users to help us build out and improve it. This will require some work on our part, and additional resources for meetings to begin to build the community.